#IMPROVICIOUS: THE IMPROVISED GUIDE TO THE INTERNET

#improvilicious, the improvised comedy show for tweens and teenagers, presents its impro-larious, help-errific, i-comical guide to the internet, during school holidays at Melbourne Town Hall.

It's a 50 minute crash-course in the tricks and traps of using Instagram, Kik, Snapchat, YouTube and other youth-oriented online social media. But not Facebook. Facebook is only for old people.

#improvilicious is improvised comedy for 9-15 year olds and their families, with two performers using random suggestions, audience participation and a cheese-grater to create informative yet ridiculous five-minute scenes and a new epic story every show. That's right – no two shows are the same! But every single one will be a totally non-digital, not-online, un-virtual and awesome #rofl :) experience.

From the team that brought you Improvilicious: The Improvised History of Theatre and Improvilicious: The Improvised Guide to High School, #improvilicious: the Improvised Guide to the Internet stars GOLDEN GIBBO-nominee Ben Russell (Tokyo Hotel) and kids' favourite Cassie Vaglivello ("hilarious improvising" Melbourne Observer).

For youth cred and creativity, students from Brunswick South Primary and Princes Hill Secondary schools collaborated with Ben, Cassie and Brianna Williams (The Big HOO HAA!) to develop scenarios and scripted bits. Loaded with jokes, slapstick and pop culture, #improvilicious appeals both to kids and adults.

"Inspired and hilarious" Herald Sun
